Payment Allocation Agreement

How the claim payment is split

Issued 2 October 2026

This agreement explains how the co-payees named below divide the claim payment of $15,000.00 and what each of them agrees to by accepting an allocation.

PARTIES

Party	Role	Initial share
Rachel Morris	Primary party · policyholder	$5,000.00
Johnny Anderson	Co-payee · co-owner	$5,000.00
Leslie James	Co-payee · contractor, Red Maple Construction	$5,000.00
Total claim payment		$15,000.00

ACCEPTING AN ALLOCATION

1. Each co-payee reviews the current allocation in SMART Disburse and selects Accept and Continue if the split is correct.
2. Accepting confirms the amount shown as your share. It does not affect the share of any other co-payee.
3. Once every co-payee has accepted the same allocation and chosen a payment method, Horizon Inc. releases each share.

CHANGING AN ALLOCATION

1. Any co-payee may propose a new allocation by selecting Change. The shares must add up to the total claim payment, and a reason of 10 to 1,000 characters is required.
2. A new allocation replaces the current one. All co-payees are notified and must accept it again, including any who accepted earlier.
3. Every allocation, its author, its date and its reason are kept in the allocation log and shown to all co-payees.

DISPUTING THE TOTAL

Only the primary party may dispute the total claim payment. A dispute cancels the payment request; the primary party then contacts Horizon Inc. to agree a revised settlement.

EXPIRY

The allocation must be accepted by all co-payees, and every co-payee must choose a payment method, before the expiry date shown in SMART Disburse. After that date the payment request expires and, where a fallback applies, the payment is issued to the primary party by check.
